Are the systems subdivided according to jurisdiction or document types? [Other]
No information system mentioned is limited to one area of law, but search functionalities may sometimes include the possibility of being limited to one area of law. Among the information systems cited, jura is the only system that allows you to search for legislation, case law and doctrine at the same time. RefLex and Justel are mainly focused on legislation. And the databases of the Constitutional Court are limited to the search for the judgments of this Court.

Documentation of Other

Do you document all other materials with reference to administrative law?
Yes
What other materials do you document? Please explain on the basis of examples.
Recording changes in legislation and making this documentation available to the Council of State and the public are among the legal tasks of the Coordination Office of the Council of State. That is why the Coordination Office registers daily in its databases most of the acts of domestic law of general application that are published in the Moniteur belge. Indeed, these acts are supposed to be useful texts for the work of one of the two sections of the Council of State. The acts thus registered are mainly the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> the Belgian Constitution; - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> almost all legislative acts (federal laws and laws of the federated entities); - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> the majority of decrees of general application of the federal authority and of the federated entities. The Coordination Office also records daily in its databases : <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> the parliamentary documents; - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> the treaties binding Belgium; - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> acts of European Union law or Benelux law referred to by registered acts of domestic law; - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> appeals before the Council of State against registered decrees and its judgements of suspension and annulment; - <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> concerning registered legislative acts, appeals and preliminary questions to the Constitutional Court and its judgments.

How is the central body in your institution composed?

What is the composition of the committee outside the institution?

What are the selection criteria? Please explain what is not documented and why not.
The main criterion for the selection of an act of domestic law published in the Moniteur belge is its general scope. Indeed, in this case, the act is liable to be applied repeatedly over time.

How do you document changes to material that has already been published?
Any change shall be linked between the amending unit of a registered act and the amended unit of another registered act. The amending unit and the amended unit are usually a section of an Act or by-law.
Each change is managed using the functionalities developed in our databases.
This method has a double purpose:
 to list all the amendments made to an act, specifying their nature (replacement, insertion, repeal, withdrawal, amendment, renumbering, interpretation, annulment, suspension, etc.);
 allow the content of any changes to be viewed, at least indirectly through full text access to the amending text and the amended text.
